

I Heard that You Got Broken

I heard that you got broken but I think you'll be okay.
You'll start to feel a little better each and every day.

We all get hurt, from time to time, and what I've learned is this:
There's nothing duct tape, rubber bands and paperclips can't fix.

So hold still while I strap this on and measure out these tacks.
There might be openings, here and there, but I'll fill those in with wax.

I'll have to run some fishing line from your elbow to your thigh.
Try not to move your arm too much until the glue is dry.

Can you feel it when I poke you here? If so, then wait a sec.
I'll add a few more layers to the padding on your neck.

Another couple seconds and I'll pull the staples out and, voila! You're as good as new... well just about...
